Introduction

The advent of 21st century has brought fundamental changes in the very structure and functioning of education system. Emergence of knowledge as basis of economic progress on one hand and its relevance in success of democracy on the other hand has added new dimensions to education, that were largely unexplored in the past. Education as a vehicle for national development and economic progress in a society guided by the democratic principles is a medium for preparing reflexive individuals-individuals capable of learning throughout life and gaining skills, applying the same in ever-changing real life situations enriching in the process their competencies to build relationships and assume new roles and above all prepared to be accountable for the decisions taken by them.

Taking into consideration the significance and relevance of the issue of skills and competencies needed for teacher educators a National Seminar under the auspices of Alumni Association of Education, BHU is proposed on the theme: Recent Reforms in Teacher Educations: Issues and Challenges with following subthemes:
